

Mrs. Hazel Steele, widow of the late Estill Steele of Malone, is presented a plaque honoring the achievements of her late husband in the field of 4-H work at a meeting of the Morgan County 4-H Council Nov. 20. Mr. Harvey Pruitt, past president of the Licking River Area 4-H Council, presents the plaque.

COUNTY 4-H COUNCIL HONORS LATE ESTILL STEELE AT MEET

The Morgan County 4-H Council met Nov. 20 to honor a Morgan County citizen active in 4-H leadership roles throughout most of his adult life — the late Estill Steele of Malone. Mr. Harvey Pruitt of Mt. Sterling, past president of the Licking River Area 4-H Council and past president of the Montgomery County 4-H Council, was present at the meeting and presented a handsome plaque to Mr. Steele's widow, Mrs. Hazel Steele, in honor of her husband's many contributions to 4-H.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Steele have contributed much of their time and energy to the 4-H program, not only at local and county level, but also at the area and state level.

Mr. Steele, a native of Malone and a lifetime farmer, served as director and for many years was vice president of the Morgan County Farm Bureau. In this position, he strived constantly to further the agriculture industry in Morgan County by enlisting and working with youth in their agriculture projects.

Also, he served as a board member of the Southern States Cooperative for many terms, and served as a 4-H leader for 30 years. During this entire period, he was aided by Mrs. Steele in directing, aiding, and planning 4-H activities. Mrs. Steele remains active in

BURLEY AVERAGE STILL CLIMBING IN SECOND WEEK

Morgan's Income Already Passes The Half Million Mark

Burley auctions finished first week of sales Friday nearly $1 higher than opening week last year, and resumed selling Monday at an even higher average. First week's sales in Kentucky averaged $72.92, up 97 cents above last year's opening week average. And second week's selling started even higher Monday—advancing to an average of $73.16. But prices dropped slightly Tuesday.

Receipts placed under loan with the burley cooperative still were running about 8% considerably under the 22% taken at support prices last year during opening week.

Gross sales on the eight-state burley belt during opening week totaled 1518 million pounds. This represented a volume increase of 6.8 million pounds over last year's opening week.

Last year prices dropped $1.74 on opening day of the second week, and the co-op had to take 26% of offerings at support prices.

1ST WEEK AVERAGE WAS $72.85

Belt-wide average for the first week of burley auctions was $72.85, an increase of about $1.60 over opening week last year. A particularly bright note was the fact that percentage of sales placed under price-support loan dropped from 22% last year to 8% this year.

WORK PROCEEDS ON THREE WELLS IN MORGAN AREA

Drillers are "making hole" in two deep wells in Morgan, and workers are running tubing in an older well in a third part of the county.

Richard Drake, drilling contractor, is making hole past the 2,000-foot level in the well he is drilling for Roland Amyx and associates in the Rubenwoods section of western Morgan county, where the plan is to go on to the 5,000-foot level.

And in eastern Morgan, Silm Ray, drilling contractor of London, is sinking a deep test for Monitor Petroleum Corp. of New York and others, on the farm of Fred Ison on Doc Ison Creek near Moon.

It is Monitor's second deep test in this area on a farm-out agreement with Ashland Oil, Pennzoil and Sun. The well is a "tight hole", so little information is available. However, observers said Wednesday that the rotary rig was making hole past the 4,000-foot level.

Monitor's division engineer Bink Strickland said they plan to go to 9,500 feet, maybe deeper. Monitor's first deep test, on the Cecil Ison farm at Stevens in eastern Elliott county, was drilled to 9,700 feet. Oil was hit at 7,900 feet in the top of the Rome and a big gas flow was hit in the St. Peter at 4,600 feet.

Drake and associates also have set tubing in well No. 2 which he drilled earlier on the Squire Nickell lease at Adele in southern Morgan, preparing to commence production. The first well on the Nickell lease, drilled nearly 25 years ago, came in at 75 barrels and has been producing since then.

DEPUTY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT AND KILLED IN OHIO, MORGAN NATIVE

Officer Is Shot By Colleague At Burglary Scene

A Greene County, Ohio sheriff's deputy, Donald Perry, a Morgan County native, was shot and killed early Saturday by a fellow deputy while investigating a break-in at a shopping center at Beaver Creek Township.

Perry, 33, of Fairborn, Ohio, was a son of Chandler Perry of Route 1 West Liberty and the late Mary Fugitt Perry.

According to Greene County Sheriff Russell Bradley, Perry was accidentally shot by Deputy Vaughn Mitchell during a burglary at Fry's Auto Parts located in the shopping center.

Perry, Bradley said, apparently heard a radio call for help from Beaver Creek police while he was patrolling the area and went to assist.

Mitchell and a Beaver Creek police officer were waiting at a back door for the owner of the business establishment to arrive and unlock a door, Bradley said.

Beaver Creek police had reported that a burglary was in progress. In the meantime, Perry arrived.

BLUE DEVIL NETTERS WIN FIRST HOME GAME FOR SECOND VICTORY

Coach Kenneth Collinsworth's Morgan High Blue Devils lost one and won one in recent basketball action, falling to Martin, 64-51, in the opening round of the Jenny Wiley Tournament last week, and winning over Paintsville Tuesday evening at home, 67-53.

In the tournament game at Prestonsburg last Wednesday, the Devils fell behind early in the fray and never regained the lead. Center Jim Hill, playing with an injured finger, failed to find the range, and though the Devils trailed by only six points at the half, Martin inched to a 10-point lead midway in the third quarter and the Morgan lads never recovered.

Guard Mike Blanton led Morgan's scoring with 10 points. Hill and Tim Keller each got 9.

GENE ROSE BUYS MORRISON FARM

Eugene Rose, West Liberty merchant, purchased at auction Saturday the 264-acre improved farm of Dorsey Morrison on the Hazel Green highway No. 203 two miles off US-460. The purchase price was $61,000. The sale was conducted by Walter J. Fritts and Robert Halsey, Mt. Sterling land brokers. The farm has a new brick home of colonial design and containing 10 rooms.

Supervised Program For Youth After Schl. Is Immediate Goal

At a meeting at the VFW Hall at Index Monday night, a citizens committee was appointed to find a suitable location for a teen center and to look over sites that may be available for future construction of a community facilities building that would include recreation facilities and activities for young and old alike.

According to State Rep. Joe W. Haney, who presided at the meet, the immediate goal of the group is to establish and staff a teen-center as soon as possible.

Calvin Schneider, executive director of the Gateway Area Development District, told the group that the Gateway Area has funds now available to help finance such a facility to provide after-school activities for teenagers.

Morgan High Principal Richard Jett, who had been asked to poll high school students on their ideas for such a facility, reported his findings.

Supt. Walton Jones reported that the board of education hopes to include facilities for certain community-wide activities in the proposed new county high school to be built at Index.

All agreed, however, that a teen-center, including a cafeteria, juke box, and some type of supervised recreation is an immediate need in the county.

Named by Rep. Haney to the committee to locate suitable quarters for the teen center and to look over sites for a possible community facilities building in the future were—

James R. Perry, chairman; Sonny Rose, Graden Walter, Jr., County Judge Gene Allen, Ronald Perkins, Mrs. Charleen Spencer, Mrs. Ken Blanton, and Ralph Perkins.

RAIL TRAVEL ON WAY BACK — MAYBE

With highways and airways getting overcrowded and more hazardous, it becomes apparent that safer and easier means of transportation must be provided. The obvious solution is a revival of railway passenger service. Thus, the railroads can be on the threshold of a new era of success if they but grasp the opportunity.

The railroads in the past two decades have given major attention to freight. They have developed faster trains, bigger cars, high-speed loading and unloading — and now they are starting block trains of containers, geared to terminals using highway trucks to deliver to outlying areas. And they are hauling more freight than ever in peacetime.

With a like amount of attention to recapturing some of the passenger business, using fast trains, with delightful cars and good service, the railroads no doubt could recapture a big part of the travel business — and be serving a crying need at the same time.

In fact, it now seems essential that the railroads quickly prepare to assume part of the crowded travel business.

POUNDRAGE CONTROL HAS ONE ADVANTAGE

Control of burley tobacco production by poundage alone, as recommended by a Farm Bureau study committee, would have one distinct advantage—farmers could use more land and less chemicals and fertilizers and produce a higher quality leaf, a type that most observers think would enable manufacturers to make and sell a safer cigarette. In the present acreage control setup, farmers naturally want to grow as much leaf as they can, and they use plenty of fertilizer and a variety of chemicals, some of which could be harmful. We have always felt that if cigarettes are health hazards, it is because of the intensive cultivation and chemicals used rather than nicotine. Poundage control would enable farmers to dispense with so much chemicals and produce a better cigarette type, and a safer type, and it is presumed the public would recognize it as being safer.

TENNESSEE FARM BUREAU ALSO ENDORSES POUNDAGE CONTROLS

Soon after the Kentucky Farm Bureau went on record in its convention in Louisville as favoring poundage control for burley tobacco, the Tennessee Farm Bureau gave unqualified endorsement to poundage control.

But the Tennessee FB opposed any change without approval of two-thirds of the growers in the eight-state burley belt—and insisted that poundage quota be based on the average yield over a five-year period.

The move was similar to the one approved unanimously by the Kentucky FB.

About 90,000 burley farmers are included among the 110,000 Tennessee farm families represented by the Tennessee Farm Bureau, and in 1966 and 1967 referenda conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Tennessee farmers overwhelmingly rejected poundage acreage quotas.

The anti-vote from Tennessee killed the proposal each time.

The farm bureau resolution already had been approved by county. Farm Bureau organizations in each of Tennessee's 95 counties, about half of which are burley growers. It was seen as a compromise hammered together because, as the resolution said, "we are faced with a crisis in the burley tobacco program and as a result in a downturn in consumption."

Never before have Americans had more and enjoyed it less.

GABLE BOWS OUT OF GOP CONTEST

Last week there were two candidates for the Republican nomination for governor in 1971—and this week there is one.

Robert Gable, former state parties commissioner, called a press conference in Frankfort Tuesday and announced he was bowing out of the race. His withdrawal clears the way for Tom Emberton, favorite of Gov. Nunn, to get the party nomination without opposition. He is a young Met-calf county lawyer and a former aide to Nunn.

Gable, since leaving the state parks job, has been managing his family business, the Stearns Lumber Co. at Stearns.

Publicity, like fire, can be friend or foe.

U.S. PROJECT TO TRAIN MIGRANT WORKERS AS MINERS IS OPPOSED

The federal government unveiled a plan last week to use federal money to recruit hard-core unemployed people in non-mining areas and bring them to the Appalachian coal field and provide on-the-job training to become coal miners.

Included in the recruiting list would be jobless migrant workers, Cuban refugees and other non-Appalachians.

But the Coal Miners Legal Defense Fund announced later it will have a battery of attorneys in West Virginia to go to court to try to halt the federal program.

J. Davitt McAteer, a West Virginia lawyer, said:

"It certainly is inconsistent to bring unemployed people into an area of higher unemployment, where some local people won't take mining jobs because they know better (for safety reasons). And this is a case of the Bureau of Mines and tax money subsidizing an industry that is booming for the first time in 15 years."

He termed it a "throw-back to the 20s when they imported slave labor from the South and from Europe."

The Interior Department had planned to train future coal miners at Southwest Community College in Rich-lands, Va., also in Montana and Colorado for metal miners.

The plan to seek out trainees among Spanish-speaking migrant workers, Cuban refugees and Indians is the feature that drew fire from the miners' group.

The Interior Department has received $675,000 in federal money to get the training program started.

NO-TILLAGE WILL REDUCE SOIL EROSION

BY H. A. WALLACE

District Conservationist No-tillage which can reduce soil erosion 65-95 percent is taking off faster than any agriculture practice since hybrid corn. That is the assessment of the Soil Conservation Service which says the once-across-the-field method of plowing and planting was used on seven million acres this year compared to their million in 1968.

No-tillage, sometimes called zero tillage, means that seed is planted directly into a cover of crop residues blanketing the entire field. In one trip across the field, the farmer simultaneously plants the seed, puts on fertilizer, and adds herbicides.

Only ten percent of the surface soil is disturbed in the whole operation. In Ohio field tests, the switch from conventional methods to no-tillage reduced soil losses from 7.8 tons per acre to .03 tons per acre.

Our soil is one of our most precious resources. With this and other conservation practices applied to our farming, we can reduce soil loss by erosion.

For more information on this practice, contact the District Office.

BY EARL KINNER, JR

A source of speculation around West Liberty for the past several weeks has been Arlie Gillingham's bridge, or more accurately, Kelse Arnett's bridge across Licking River about three miles east of town on U.S. 460. Arlie built it, however, and speculation has centered, quite frankly, on the sturdiness of the 190-foot span. In fact, we're told that a number of engineering specialists (mostly of the sidewalk foreman variety) have loudly predicted that the structure—made of one hundred 20-foot sections of 10-inch iron pipe and steel cable — would collapse into the river with the first vehicle to cross it.

It is reliably reported that Arlie and his men on numerous occasions had to stop work on the bridge because of the large number of spectators standing around speculating. Arlie said the Greyhound bus even stopped one day and all the passengers got off to get a better look at the prodigious undertaking. Suspense has been building steadily since the structure began to take shape.

But Arlie, who admits that his formal education ended somewhat short of an engineering degree, never had a doubt. Seeing is believing (see picture above) and rumor has it that Arlie is now ready to move on to greater things—perhaps a bridge across the Ohio River. And says a source close to Arlie, if that one proves as sturdy as the one he built across the Licking, who knows? Maybe the mighty Mississippi will be next. That's Arlie driving the bulldozer in the photo above. Others ers are Wes Hibbins, Stanley Franklin, Alden Collins, Klamman Nickell, and Kelse Arnett. Lanny Franklin made the photo. Incidentally, that swag in the center span is not caused by the weight of the vehicles. It's built in, designed to distribute stress more or less equally on both the main girders, and supporting steel cables.

Boy, it's been a banner year for turnips. Leonard DeBord's 4 lb., 7 oz. turnip still tops the list of those we've seen. But it seems that nearly everyone with a turnip patch had big ones this year. Fred Denney of West Liberty brought in one, nearly as big as Mr. DeBord's and S. E. Craft, also of West Liberty, brought in three big ones. Homer Elam also had a display of large turnips in front of his store, and we've heard of many more. Our office is beginning to look like a vegetable market, but keep bringing them turnips in, folks; we like 'em, big or little.

ed slightly from last year because of small increases in percentage of inferior marketings. The proportion of no-grade (NOC) increased noticeably. Also the ratio of flyings decreased. Bulk of sales consisted of fair to fine leaf, low and fair lugs and fair flyings. But higher prices were paid for most grades than last year. Increases ranged from $1.00 to $3.00 per hundred, but a few grades were unchanged to $1.00 lower. Select baskets sold for $79.

Morgan Income

Morgan County's cash income from burley went past the half million-dollar mark early this week.

The Commercial Bank of West Liberty reported Wednesday that 663 tobacco checks had cleared for a total of $522,124.31.

This compares with a total of $578,104.39 last year, when one more selling day was represented.

As in past years, many Morgan crops were bringing better than average prices, among them these—

Drug Crackdown In Magoffin Results
In Arrest of Two

SALYERSVILLE, KY. — A youth being questioned for breaking and entering volunteered information to State Trooper Dan Stumbo concerning sale of dangerous drugs in Magoffin county, which has resulted in the arrest of two persons near Bloomington — Melvin Phipps and Sue Oney. Now State Police and local authorities are engaged in attempts to uncover other members of a possible drug ring, Stumbo said.
